Santa RéCorrespondence of Dewer Republican.

José Maria Griego, the Valencia county troubadour at San Rafael, Valencia county, died at his home to-day of old age.

For the last few years Mr. Griego had been blind. He was a fine musician on the violin and for over sixty years had been playing at all festivals, marriages and baptisms.

He was a native of Cebolleta and was a man of wonderful memory. At the time that the suit concerning title to the Cebolleta grant was tried in Albuquerque he astonished the lawyers when he testified that he knew the names of over 500 of the heirs of the original grantees of that grant.

For a great many years he travelled from place to place, visiting all the villages of the Spanish settlers, and he was a welcome guest at the homes of all. His arrival in a village was announced by a procession of boys, headed by Griego with his famous violin.

In the early days when the Spanish settlers and the Indians were at war, frequent expeditions would start from Cebolleta for the Indian country. If one was successful a courier would come ahead to bring the news to the settlements, and a procession of the people would go to meet the returning too the Indians and their remains would be brought in strapped to their horses. On those occasions processions of the people would sio go to meet the returning troops, also headed by El Griego, but not with his violin would be on the families of the decased. The following morning all the settlers would attend mass and would follow the remains to the cemetery.

There are hundreds of homes in that part of the territory in which Griego played at the baptisms of the grandparents and at the marriages and baptisms of succeeding generations to the present time. His arrival in any of the villages was an occasion of great rejoioing, for during his stay the people had a good time. There would be serenades every night: and his name will remain as a household word for a long time to come.

Thought Little Frank Fell Down.

Frought Little Frank Fell Down.

From the Louisville Herald.

A young local lawyer tells a story upon a certain prominent, absent-minded jurist of Louisville, on whom the years do not now sit lightly, and who is prone to forget things he should know best.

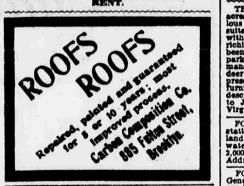

"At a dinner I recently attended," said the young lawyer, "the older lawyer, of whom I speak, said to the hostess:

"By the way, Mrs. H., have you seen your little boy, Frank, within the last few hours?" your little boy, Frank, within the last level hours?"

"'No, Judge,' replied the hostess, 'I haven't seen him since 10 A. M., since I come to think of it, and I can't imagine where he is."

"Well,' replied the attorney, 'seeing you pour out that water just now reminded me of something I had on my mind to tell you some time ago, but which, unfortunately, escaped my mind. It was just about 10 o'clock, I think, that I saw little Frank fall down the cistern in your yard." CETY REAL ESTATE.
